Chelsea FC declares that a meeting was held between the CEO of Tottenham Hotspur, and the President of Chelsea FC, Jason Gannon. The meeting was held at The Mayfair Suite of the Claridge's hotel, located in London. In the meeting, those who were present were, the President of Chelsea FC, Jason Gannon. The CEO of Tottenham Hotspur, and the bodyguards appointed by the clubs itself. The meeting took place and those involved talked about the safety and transparency of the league. While Chelsea recognises that the club itself operates under private American investment, we believe that ownership nationality should not be the deciding factor in football governance. The real concern is whether any ownership group, regardless of its country of origin, is allowed to exercise disproportionate influence or undermine the fairness of the competition. Our goal is clear, the Premier League must not become a tool for the financial, or political interest of any individual.
Chelsea supports fair, transparent and consistently enforced regulations to protect the integrity of English Football.

Concluding this, we can confirm that no deals were made and the purpose of this meeting was to protect English Football.
